Gambling is an addiction associated with mental health problems including depression, anxiety and anti-social personality disorder. Gambling addictions can lead to many serious consequences, including loss of jobs, failed relationships and severe debt. Problem gambling effects can also include avoiding others due to shame or embarrassment. The stress of gambling problems sometimes causes health problems. But there is help available if people understand these effects. There are needs for public health and treatment services to routinely screen and assess for a range of issues, including gambling problems, family violence, alcohol and drug abuse and mental health concerns and provide treatments designed to manage this cluster of conditions.

The Wyndham Gambling Prevention Program (WGPP) is a pilot project funded by the Victorian Responsible Gambling Foundation and is designed to develop sustainable, community-driven, culturally and linguistically appropriate programs.

WGPP developed resources and facilitated community education and forums to raise awareness and deal with problem gambling in newly arrived communities from refugee backgrounds – in this case five ethnic groups living in the Wyndham area. The provision of public health information and specialised treatment services targeted towards ‘at risk’ groups can help to combat the potential adverse effects of increased gambling cultures.

This educational resource kit developed in five community languages contains information that will be helpful to those who are seeking assistance either for themselves, their family and friends or community members. It is translated into Amharic,

Somali, Dinka, Karen and Chin to increase these communities' access to information in their own language.

HACN extensively worked with community elders from Sudan, Ethiopia, Burma and Somalia who identified what gambling means to them and their respective communities and assisted in developing this resource kit. What gambling means for them and their messages are listed below

HACN would like to express its appreciation to the Victorian Responsible Gambling Foundation who made the funds and professional support available to address these problems in our communities in respectful, culturally responsive and empowering ways.

From the Sudanese elders:

Lotto drains your money away

Gambling is a wildfire- it can burn your savings, welfare and wallet (devastating rapidly)

Hugging pokies can harm your relationship and life

From the Chin:

Avoid poverty, don't gamble. If you really love your family, never try gambling .

From the Karen:

Sit and think carefully! You are thinking wrongly if you think gambling is an easy way to get money, you can easily lose everything! When you regret gambling, make the right decision and walk away!

From the Somali:

If you've made a mistake with gambling, switch to the right path. Gambling is a hidden drug, it is addictive and won't solve your problems .

From the Ethiopians :

Gambling is like cancer, don't hide your worries, get help quickly ;the quicker you get help the better

Be brave enough to say NO to gambling

Support your family in seeking help with gambling from agencies supporting gamblers

Other important messages from the Elders:

Believe in change- seek help and you CAN recover from gambling. Many people just like you, resolve their gambling problems through seeking help!

Don't hide your gambling problem .. It is not your fault that gambling is addictive, and with help you can recover!

Gambling leads to crimes—it is dangerous. You can solve your financial or family problems—there are people out there who can help you—so ask for help!

Gambling support services are confidential and free .

Make sure you know what your children are doing online—it is easy for them to get sucked into online gambling and they are widely advertised .
